PRESIDENT BUSH AND OTHER POLITICIANS ARE MOUNTING A CAMPAIGN TO REWRITE THE U.S. AND STATE CONSTITUTIONS TO LEGALIZE INJUSTICE AND DISCRIMINATION.

In Our Community We Know Justice is Always in Short Supply. So If We Don't Stand Up for Equal Rights Who Will?

Coretta Scott King

"I am disturbed, however, about the current effort to enact a Constitutional amendment banning same-sex marriages. In my view, Constitutional amendments should not be used to restrict or deny freedoms, but to protect and expand freedom. Gay and lesbian people have families and their families should have legal protection, whether by marriage or civic unions. A Constitutional amendment banning same-sex marriages is a form of gay-bashing, and it would do nothing at all to protect traditional marriages."

— Speech at Richard Stockton College,
(Pomona, NJ, 3/23/04)

Rep. John Lewis

"...I have fought too hard and too long against discrimination based on race and color not to stand up against discrimination based on sexual orientation. I've heard the reasons for opposing civil marriage for same-sex couples. Cut through the distractions; and they stink of the same fear, hatred, and intolerance I have known in racism and in bigotry."

(Boston Globe, 11/25/03)

Willie Brown

"You would think that those who are always talking about family values would want to create an environment of permanent relationships for people of the same sex. But they're not advocating family values. They're advocating their values."

Former Speaker of the California General Assembly

ATLANTA

BLACK GAY PRIDE

Welcome to the Atlanta Black Pride 2004, hosted by In The Life Atlanta, Inc. (ITLA), the Official Organizers. We are pleased that you choose to spend your Labor Day Holiday in Atlanta, Georgia. ITLA has hosted Atlanta Black Gay Pride since 1996. We will continue to be one of the premiere Black GLBT organizations in the nation. Our theme this year is "Unity." The theme is very simple and to the point – Unity. We must be unified in getting out to vote, unified in finding a cure for HIV/AIDS, unified in our Spirituality, unified in our families and homes, and unified in overcoming internal homophobia. We all must be a unified force for the GLBT community of African decent.

We have planned a weekend filled with celebrations, educational workshops, cultural events in poetry, drama, film, and literary. On Sunday, there will be an Inter Faith Service to worship the life, light, and power of God. The nightlife will be fanatic. We are here to celebrate and turn up the heat. The heat can be felt with the thousands of people in town that realize that life is good.

One of the central theme of this weekend centers on the freedom to marry. It does not matter how you feel about the institution of marriage, many of us do not want to see discrimination written into the constitution. This is a Civil Rights Movement. It's been over 100 years since African Americans stopped being legally regarded as property, and 50 years since Brown vs. Board of Education ruled that separate, by its nature is not equal. We must always believe that justice always wins eventually. Your voice must be heard at the polls this November.

In the spirit of unity, join us for our fourth annual Stand Up and Represent March on Monday, September 6th. We are blessed by your present here in Atlanta – have a wonderful time.

Happy Black Pride,

What makes your today better than your yesterday?

Every day, I attempt to educate myself about some new aspect of the world, challenge my existing beliefs and prejudices, expand my circles of influence, and validate what I hold to be true. I don't always succeed; but that's my goal. The great thing about establishing goals is even when you don't accomplish them fully; at least you're headed in the right direction.

Never has the black/gay/lesbian/transgender (BGLT) community been in better position to raise our visibility, improve relationships with the larger society and garner the respect we deserve as human beings. In short, now is the time to improve our future.

Black Gay Pride is just one opportunity for us to address issues and empower our circumstances and ourselves. But you only get out of it what you put into it. It's easy to get distracted by the flamboyant side of Pride—late night parties and outlandish sexual behavior. To be fair, partying and sex is a part of life. The problem arises when those activities comprise your entire BGLT experience. After all, life is about balance. Don't disregard the chance to connect with brothers and sisters from all over the country and attend workshops and events that instill self-esteem, purpose and validate our sense of self in a country that challenges our existence daily.

This year alone has seen a rise in the anti-gay marriage agenda, HIV/AIDS cases in people of color and an obsession over "living on the down low" (note: the CDC researcher who conducted the study cited for proof of black bisexual men spreading HIV recently declared her study has been misinterpreted). Despite these challenges, we must use our resources to fight back because nobody is going to do it for us (you may want to re-read this sentence).

First, we must recognize that opportunities for improving our future already exist. In any given city there are nonprofit organizations and groups in need of members, money and motivation. Seek them out and use your talents to make a positive impact. Anything from organizational skills, political contacts, financial contributions and a flair for design is an asset. After joining, keep in mind you are a part of an organization. Too many of our groups get stifled or dismantled due to in-fighting or individuals who want to act as dictators. If you cannot find a group whose mission speaks to your spirit, start your own. Chances are if you sense a void there's an audience to fill it.

We can provide more support for existing organizations, eliminate tension around diversity (tops/bottoms, butch/femme, positive/negative, out/DL), support our transgender community, celebrate (rather than undermine) relationships and stay open to interaction outside of clubs and bars. Most importantly, gay men and lesbians need to work and play together more often. No real success will come from us winning battles separately. When we are focused and working in harmony we will achieve unity. And that is power.

The New Face of Black Gay Netw

by: Denise T. Holden, Program Director, Affair with Flair

Networking is an essential skill needed by every gay & lesbian business professionals and entrepreneur. Effective social and business networking is the linking together of individuals who, through trust and relationship building, become walking, talking advertisements for one another.

Affair with Flair, an Atlanta based social organization, is changing the way people think about professional black gay networking. Affair with Flair helps to provide a balance of networking and social opportunities for the gay professional. Creating opportunities that promote personal and business related interactions among black gay & lesbian professionals, organizations and businesses is very important to the success of our black gay community.

Below are ten tips for successful networking:

- 1) Keep in mind that networking is about being genuine and authentic, building trust and relationships, and seeing how you can help others.
- 2) Ask yourself what your goals are in participating in networking events so that you will pick groups that will help you get what you are looking for.
- 3) Visit as many groups as possible that spark your interest. Notice the tone and attitude of the group. Do the people sound supportive of one another? Does the leadership appear competent? Many groups will allow you to visit two times before joining.
- 4) Hold volunteer positions in organizations. This is a great way to stay visible and give back to groups that have helped you.
- 5) Ask open-ended questions in networking conversations. This means questions that ask who,

orking

what, where, when, and how as opposed to those that can be answered with a simple yes or no. This form of questioning opens up the discussion and shows listeners that you are interested in them.

6) Become known as a powerful resource for others. When you are known as a strong resource, people remember to turn to you for suggestions, ideas, names of other people, etc. This keeps you visible to them.

7) Have a clear understanding of what you do and why, for whom, and what makes your doing it special or different from others doing the same thing. In order to get referrals, you must first have a clear understanding of what you do that you can easily articulate to others.

8) Be able to articulate what you are looking for and how others may help you. Too often people in conversations ask, "How may I help you?" and no immediate answer comes to mind.

9) Follow through quickly and efficiently on referrals you are given. When people give you referrals, your actions are a reflection on them. Respect and honor that and your referrals will grow.

10) Call those you meet who may benefit from what you do and vice versa. Express that you enjoyed meeting them, and ask if you could get together and share ideas.
